EAGER TO LOVE

A couple of weeks ago, while on retreat, I took with me a book title “Eager To Love” by Fr. Richard Rohr, a Franciscan friar and National Best Selling Author. The sub-title is “The Alternative Way of Francis of Assisi”. The book jacket remarks that “Fr. Rohr draws in scripture, insights from psychology, and literary and artistic references, to weave together an understanding of the traditions as first practice by St. Francis.”

I was intrigued to see how St. Francis’ ideas and philosophy would translate to our present day daily spirituality and thinking.

This is not a book report, but because of recent events in Paris, Brussels, and other terrorist activities around the world and here in the US, and the rhetoric surrounding them, one chapter caught my attention, thoughts, and meditations.

The title of the chapter is “Entering the World of Another: Francis and the Sultan of Egypt”.

In this chapter Rohr discusses the events surrounding the nine Crusades (1095 – 1291) and the effort in 1219 of Francis to bring together both sides of the Christian-Muslim issues. He writes:

“it is significant to realize that the mistrust, fear, and hatred between the East and the West in the 13th century and between Christianity and Islam matches if not exceeds what we are facing today.”

Francis made several attempts, leaving his own culture at “great cost” to go to the Sultan of Egypt. On his third attempt he went to Egypt to primarily tell his own Christian troops that they were wrong in what they were doing. Francis is recorded to have said to the troops:

“Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you. Our Lord Jesus Christ himself, in whose footsteps we must follow, called the man who betrayed him friend, and gave himself up of his own accord to his executioners. Therefore our friends are those who for no reason cause us trouble and suffering, shame or injury, pain or torture, even martyrdom and death. It is these we must love and love very much, because they give us eternal life.”

I think it advantageous for us to mediate on these words of Francis and ask ourselves some questions:

- ◆ What are we and/or our country’s leaders doing to perpetuate the feelings of animosity toward another’s religion or way of faith? How can we change this attitude toward others to a more loving one?
- ◆ What are we doing to bring Jesus’ and Francis’ message of love in our own lives and of those around us?
- ◆ Do we really believe that Jesus is working in our lives to bring peace in the world and how are we working for that peace?

I cannot answer these questions for you, because they are even difficult for me to get a handle on. However, I do know that prayer to God to change our viewpoints and mediating on our own relationship with others will be the starting points.

Good luck in your working out these questions but remember the opening words of the “Prayer of St. Francis”:

Lord, make me an instrument of your peace.
